£65.00 Full Time Student
(including refreshments & complimentary lunch)
Time: 9:15am until 4:30pm

This course is designed for anybody that works with children and young people. The course has been developed to enhance your understanding of why children and young people behave the way that they do, and the potential underlying thoughts and feelings that impact on the way that the child or young person will express themselves. Throughout the day, you will discover clear methods and practical strategies to use with children and young people, alongside theories and knowledge to inform the way that you work with children and young people.

Benefits this course will offer

- By attending this training, you will gain a clear understanding of the current theories and research relating to understanding children's behaviour.
- The course will offer you insight in to the potential factors that may influence children and young people's behaviour.
- You will gain valuable techniques to enable you to engage with children and young people who are presenting a number of challenging behaviours and who are expressing their needs through their behaviour
- Clear indicators to help you identify when children require additional support.
- You will leave with a knowledge of the range of additional support that can be offered for children and young people who are communicating their needs through their behaviour.
- This training will enable you to take away tools and ideas to engage and support children and young people.
- You will have the opportunity to learn in a safe high quality training environment, where learning is enjoyable.
